

The new way to record waste transfers

1 000 businesses recognise the benefits of edoc

Just six weeks after the launch of edoc more than 1000 businesses across the UK have recognised its benefits and started making the switch to edoc online.

The innovative new system which is designed to save businesses time and money has already been adopted by the likes of Grundon Waste Management Ltd, Helistrat, B&M Waste Services, CIWM and many more, all of which are benefitting from using the new service.

Toni Robinson, Compliance Manager at Grundon said, “We issue around 2000 waste transfer notes each month so being able to use the new online system in order to issue them is much more efficient, simpler and easier than through the old paper system. The whole process is just greener, cheaper and trouble-free.”

To find how edoc can benefit your business and for the full story click here.

B&M Waste Services provides top tips on why and how businesses should adopt edoc

B&M Waste Services is one of the businesses that has successfully switched over to edoc and is now actively using the system for recording waste transfers on a day-to-day basis.

We asked B&M finance director Grahame Henderson, and systems accountant Kevin Wong who managed the company’s transition to edoc, to share their experience and top tips for other businesses looking to make the switch to the new online system.

To find out more about how they managed to process, view their top tips and read the article in full click here.

Better for business: Ministerial endorsement for new edoc system

The new edoc system was amongst a range of initiatives highlighted by Ministers recently at an event to demonstrate government progress in reducing the burden of environmental regulation on business.

To find out more please click here.

Now it’s your turn

Have you thought about how you can use edoc ?

We’ve designed edoc to be intuitive and simple to use but why not take a look at resources available online to help you get started. Follow our simple implementation guide to help your business plan your activity to make the switch. Or view our ‘how to’ videos to see how to carry out key tasks. Click here for more information.

You might also like to use our news articles and business case studies in your own e-bulletin or newsletter. We’ve also got presentations and leaflets available which you could use as part of your own awareness raising activities at your company, member or other association meetings.

If you are interested in obtaining information or news stories on edoc please contact lgriffiths@golleyslater.co.uk

With the contribution of the LIFE financial instrument of the European Community.